ROMAN BISHOPS ASK MITIGATION IN MEXICAN LAW

Appeal to President Calles for Suspension of Religious Restrictions

MERCHANTS PROPOSE JOINT CONFERENCES

Their Letters Say Viewpoints of Episcopate and Government Are Reconcilable

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19 (A) - In the names of all the Roman archbishops, bishops, priests and communicants in Mexico, the Most Rev. BALLOT BOARD Mora y del Rio, Archbishop of Mexico has requested President Calles to suspend the recently enforced religious regulations which have resulted in the suspension of masses and other ceremonies in Roman Catholic churches throughout Mexico.

"Freedom of conscience, thought, religion, teaching, association and the press" is requested by the arch bishop, who also asks that the church be granted "recognition of the necessary personality to make these

Almost simultaneously a group of about 20 Mexico City business men in sion in its hearing of protests this various lines sent letters to President afternoon at the State House. Rus-Calles and the Roman Catholic epis-sell A. Wood, candidate for Republicopate, proposing that the Government and the episcopate confer to-ment and the episcopate confer to-gether in an effort to settle the religious situation. These letters say that it should be possible to reconcile the divergent viewpoints of the Gov-Loring P. Jordan, on technical ernment and the episcopate.

Appeal Sets Precedent It is said that President Calles cations of the Archbishop and the business men, and in well-informed circles the belief is expressed that it is almost certain the Chief Executive will not acquiesce. Archbishop Mora y del Ric says in his letter that he is of the conviction that the suspension of the regulations and granting the free-dom and recognition requested "is the only way to end the old religious conflict." The letter is thought to be the first ever addressed to any Mexican president by the episcopate. ."The liberties to which we are entitled as Christians and citizens of a cultured nation" are requested.

They are asked to be given "sincerely and without restriction."

President Calles is urged to use his influence with Congress to have the religious clauses of the Constitution and the new regulations and penalties radically changed. It is asserted in the letter that the episcopate has not previously attempted should not have used the word to have the Constitution amended because no other President of the Republic had sought to enforce the

Technical Omission Alleged

In the protest against the papers of Mr. Jordan, Mr. Wood said his opponent had written on his nomina-tion papers the title of "register of probate." In using that expression, according to Mr. Wood, no office had been named at all, as the real title in his opinion is "register of probate and insolvency." For this reason he asked that Mr. Jordan be disqualified. Another objection raised by Mr. Wood was that Mr. Jordan, who is "present" before the title written on

FORESTS CALLED RAIN PRODUCERS

Give More Water Than the Ocean, World Plant Congress Is Informed

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP)-Forests contribute more water vapor sistant Federal Attorney-General to the air than lakes and streams, under A. Mitchell Palmer, advocated and consequently are the actual rainproducing sections of a continent, Raphael Zon of the United States Forest Service, St. Paul, Minn., told the Forestry Section of the International Congress of Plant Sciences

Modern studies of the circulation of water in the atmosphere have tended to upset the old theory that wind carried vapor from the oceans over the continent, where it condensed in the form of rain or snow, Mr. Zon declared. It is now believed, he added, that the oceans contribute only two-ninths of the precipitation, and that the remaining seven-ninths is delivered from evaporation from the land itself.

Measurement of evaporation, he explained, has shown that lakes and streams contribute less vapor to the air than bare moist soils; that bare moist soils contribute less than land covered with grass and crops, and that of all vegetative covering, a Jense forest contributes most vapor.

The section for taxonomy, interested in the flora of the continent. was told by C. H. Ostenfeld, of Jobenhavns University, Denmark, that recent collections and studies of flowering plants in Greenland have shown that the flora of that country is largely the result of immigration from Arctic North America and from Europe. Some of the hardy species, he said, may have survived the ice age of Greenland. But it is probable the main part of the flora came through immigration during the warmer post-glacial epoch.

Yesterday afternoon the Christopher J. Lee, Choate Burnham and Columbus Playgrounds in East Boston united in giving a carnival at the first-named. It was an event of the year and several hundred adults were spectators. Featuring the day was a doll carriage parade in which 50 children participated. Prizes were awarded for the best, the most unique, and the most patriotic appearance. Marie Radcliffe, 1½ years old, was given a special prize as the youngest participant.

An exhibition of folk dancing was given by children from all the playgrounds who united also in a group made up the remainder of the program.

Captures Mythical "Ashes" in Fifth and Final Test Match

By Carle from Monitor Bureau

IN COURT From Meniter Bureau

LONDON, Aug. 19—Australia collapsed dynamatically in the last innings of the fifth. test match here at the loval, and England's cricketers won by a totally unexpected margin of 239 runs to take the honors of the present series and regain the mythical "ashes" of supremiacy for which they have fought so earnestly since the dark disys of 1920-21.

The dismissal of the redoubtable whiters for a meager 125 in 234 hours is one of the most amazing happenings in the history of the game. About 3 c'clock vesterday the spectators were leiling each other that, even with the Australians set to get 415 for victory the situation was by no means safe for England. Two hours later they were saking whether the "diggers" would manage to reach 100. And the astonishing finish was due not so much if the failure of the batismen or the vagaries of a worn and drying wicket as to the great bowling and superlative fielding of the Motherland's chosen.

W. R. Rhodes, whom the crowd affectionately greeted as "grandad" tied the batismen up so they could not move while at the other end Frank Larwood sent down lightning deliveries which at times one could not follow with the eye. One after another the world's best cricketers, fell victim to brilliant catching.

Much of the credit must go to A. P. C. Chapman, the youngest captain ever to lead England in test matches in this country. He worked his bowlers with rare judgment yesterday and adjusted fis field cleverly, and by his own skill and energy played a big part in the friumph. Every ball sent down and every hit made caused the big throng to rock with excitement, and at the collusion there was a scene of rejoicing not likely to be forgotten by anyone who witnessed it.

This match, the first test to be played without a time limit in England, was to rock with excitement, and at the collusion there was a scene of rejoicing not likely to be forgotten by anyone who witnessed it.

This match, the first test to be played without a time limit in England, was to rock with Leeds and Manchester ending unsatis-lactorily in draws.

Favored by good weather except for an hour or so in the middle of the day resterday, the game lasted four days— but for the Australians' quick exit it would have lasted a fifth—and that in itself would seem to justify the opinion that test matches limited to three days are no longer practicable. ### ARCHERS IDLE FOR WHOLE DAY

Rain Interferes-Six Leaders Separated by 42 Points -Many Prizes

BRYN MAWR, Pa., Aug. 19 (Special)—The annual tournament of the National Archery Association of the United States which is taking place here, was held up yesterday because of the weather. The day's respite gave the contestants a chance to discuss the relative merits of the leaders and to speculate as to the winners.

The scores of the first six leaders lie within 42 points of one another. Prophecy as to the outcome is very uncertain, This difference of 42 points is negligible, inasmuch as more than this is often made at a single end (an end being six arrows) and there are 54 more ends to shoot before the championship is decided.

These six close contestants are A. L. Bush of Greenwich, Conn., with a score of 554 points, Stanley F. Spencer of San Pedro, Calif., 552 points; Gen. I. Thord Gray, Greenwich, Conn., 536; A. W. Lambert, St. Louis, 530; P. W. Crouch, Newton Center, Mass., (the present title holder) 526, and W. H. Palmer Jr., Wayne, Pa. 510.

Hard Schedule Faces Meadow Club Tennis Players

SOUTHAMPTON, I. I., Aug. 19 (Special)—With every effort being made to bring the singles down to the semifinal round, the doubles down to the third round and a start made in the mixed doubles, the tennis players who are competing in the Meadow Club invitation tournament here faced a hard program this morning, all due to the fact that weather conditions were such that only six matches could be disposed of yesterday, two of them in the doubles.

Of the two singles matches disposed of yesterday, only one was actually believed.

of the two singles matches disposed of yesterday, only one was actually played. Manuel Rainville, who holds the title of intermediate champion of Canada, was due to meet Julius Seligson of New York, former indoor champion, in the second round of the singles; but as the latter defaulted the Canadian advanced to the third round where he met Jerome Lang, former Columbia University captain. He gave Lang a hard battle, winning the first set at 7—5, but after the New Yorker had become used to the conditions of the court, he got better control of his strokes and won the next two sets and the match.

Lads of Western Rangers Revive Indians' Old Tribal Government

Los Angeles Organization Has Been Called "Democracy of Boyhood in Great Republic of Youth"

I'd seen an ant fly."

Thus ran the "ranger reports" of the Western Rangers, lads of 11 years and older. Each report was listened to with rapt attention and no sooner was one boy seated than another was on his feet. And so it is, each week, at the meetings of this organization, which has been designated "a pure Democracy of Boyhood in the Great Republic of

For the past 11 years under the leadership of Harry James, origina-tor and founder, the Rangers have grown from one club to 28 councils all centering in Los Angeles. Their organization is the tribal form of aboriginal Indians—a perfectly natural and orderly government, which oys in this State instinctively adhere to with loyalty.

Club House Well Equipped

The Rangers now have their own club house at 4000 Pasadena Avenue, Los Angeles, equipped with meeting rooms, an outdoor council circle, small playground, laboratory, mulibrary, astronomical tele-

Here, in the winter, a school is conducted with the approval of the Los Angeles public school system. In the summer, the Ranger activities are centered at a camp up near Lake Arrowhead, in the San Bernardino Mountains, a camp built for them by the Optimists' Club, where 45 lads can be accommodated in two-week periods. However, every week-end throughout the year, this is what happens in the words of one of their Ranger songs:

Up in the mountains, far and free, where pines tower to the sky.
Or up in some canyon rising sheer or where desert sands are dry.
There's a camp of husky, manly boys—
It's the Western Rangers—
In a Western Rangers Camp.

With such an all-year-round program, only lads who "desire to learn and live the outdoor life" are attracted to the organization. And the attitude which pervades this band of boys is typified in Harry James, friend and leader. His is a 24-hour b, each night of the week, attending council meetings in distant corof the city. He has some 18 well chosen young men—college youths who are grown-up Western Rangers themselves—to help in the actual supervising.

In his original boys' club work, Harry James had the help of his old Indian friend, "Dark Cloud." Perhaps that is why the Western Rangers salute by raising the right hand at arm's length straight above the ulders with fingers together. The old-time Indian greeting used throughout the West, "How," is also theirs. And the Ranger, too, knows

Chooses Field of Work

Each lad works out his own personal totem registered opposite his name in the council records, each making his free-will choice of this observations and impressions on this making his free-will choice of this as he pursues his nature study. He is wisely urged not to draw his totem with photographic exactness but to make it a symbol. Happy is the boy who knows that once registered, no one else can use his personal totem.

Is it any wonder that a Ranger becomes alert to Nature's sights and lower costs. The adoption of this content is the common trip what appears to me to have most significance, it would be the more receptive attitude of the industrial leaders toward new ideas and new ways of doing things.

"In academic circles this is called the research attitude, but in the field it is more the determined effort.

BELMAISON REPRODUCTIONS

Charming English Gottage Furniture Lowered During the Sale

Among the cottage styles of various countries none is more attractive than the simple old English country pieces, which because of the close relationship in which they stand to early American pieces consort very well with them in Colonial interiors. They also adapt themselves particularly well to the double role often required of furniture by the small apartment. Nor is it the least of their virtues that reproductions in this agreeable style, imported from England and made from old seasoned wood, are so very moderate in price. More than usually so, of course, while the Furniture Sale is in progress.

Many pieces of this type will be found in Belmaison's collections. The gateleg table illustrated, with its spiral turned legs, and the splatback English Windsor side and arm chairs are particularly desirable for the apartment whose living room is also used as a dining room. The oak table is 5 feet 2 inches long, when open, and 4 feet wide. The chairs are of elm and beechwood. Add an open-shelved Jacobean dresser and a small table or so to such a group and one's room is all but furnished . . . and most delightfully so!

Roman Restorations

Rome, June 2

Special Correspondence

THE Governor of Rome, Senator
Filippo Cremonest, with the full approval and support of the Fascist Government, is just now effecting a vast and important program of archeological renovation, such as has never been attempted before, not even in the times of the Renaissance. This includes the careful exploration of the Capitoline Hill from which all buildings of mediaval or more recent date will be eliminated, thus leaving the ancient "Arxiniated, thus leaving the ancient "Arxiniated thus leaving the arcient "Arxinial beauty, Senator Cremonest contemplates clearing the whole adjoining area, which is of the greatest archeological importance, of the ready accomplished, and fhe clearing of the Theater of Marcellus from the mushroom-growth of shabby little shops and houses which now hide its magnificent lines.

Perhaps no other monument of ancient Rome has been so carefully studied, measured and reproduced in a thousand drawings and pictures, from the Renaissance to our own days, as the beautiful little Ionic temple in Rome known as the Temple of the Fortuna Virilis, near the temple in Rome known as the Temple of the Fortuna Virilis, near the Piazza of the Bocca della Verità. We find its elegant lines reproduced in the sketch-books of such giants of the sixteenth century as Sangallo, Peruzzi, Dosio and Palladio, and they reappear in the seventeenth and eighteenth century etchings of "Aerarium" or Treasury pocketed reappear in the seventeenth and scrap-iron were sold by auction and eighteenth century etchings of Piranesi, Canina and Rossini. The interest and admiration which it has aroused throughout the centuries and still continues to arouse fully justifies the action of the Italian Government in ordering that it should be isolated from the decrepit old buildings which encumbered it and carefully restored.

Well Preserved Columns

The work of isolating the temple of Fortuna Virilis began in a tentative manner as long ago as the year 1819, when an adjoining house was pulled down and the beautiful Corinthian columns were partly restored, but it is only now, 115 years stored, but it is only now, 115 years later, that the great work of restoration has been successfully completed. In order to bring to light the eastern wall of the temple it was necessary to demolish three old houses, the removal of which brought to light a series of well-preserved columns fianking the "pronaos" or portico. This rises on a tall basement of travertine marble, and is reached by a flight of marble steps. Excavations in the interior revealed another staircase, and altogether it may be said case, and altogether it may be said that from an architectural point of view the temple has virtually been restored to its original state despite the lapse of centuries.

No less interesting than the purely archæological discoveries were those of an artistic nature, for in removing all the religious ornaments, inscriptions, marbles, etc., belonging to the old Armenian church which have been transferred to the Armenian College of San Nicola da Tolientino, some apleudid medieval frescoes were brought to light, especially while demolishing some modern pillars which supported the roof. They represented storles from the Gospel and legends of saints, and are in an excellent state of preservation, the colors retaining a remarkable degree of freshness. From the Byantine style of these paintings it may be safely said that they dets as far back as the ninth century. There sisc came to light the marble slab which formed the altar of the primitive church, and an inscription placed on the tombs of the some of Theophiliactus and Theodora, who had such an important part in the history of tenth-century Rome.

The work of restoration and isolation which has just been completed has also resulted in important discoveries of a technical nature regarding the constructive and decorative systems adopted by the builders of the primitive church, and an inscription placed on the tombs of the some of Theophiliactus and Theodora, who had such an important part in the history of tenth-century Rome.

Two different manufactures and interesting and the outer walls of the "cella" were also corrected with builocks' heads, chandeliers and little boys holding festions of leaves and flowers, the whole being most gracefully composed and executed.

All the new elements which have now come to light tend to confirm that the temple was built about the middle of the first century B. C. annely, at a period of transition between the

Before him the woods broke away into a grassy little meadow with a pond in the center. in the water were mounds made of mud and sticks shaped like beehives, only much larger. One large mound stood entirely out of water on a tiny island in the middle of the pond. "Beavers!" muttered the boy. The village seemed deserted, but presently he saw a black nose headed toward the island. As the little gray-ish-brown animal crawled out of the water, he hit its surface a resounding slap with his funny flat tail. Martin chuckled. This was his gunshot! The animal ducked back again, doubtless toward the underground entrance to his home. Martin noted with pleased interest signs of activity throughout the place. How to Find the Width of Rivers An interesting and easy method of finding the distance across a river used by military men, suris that veyors, and bushmen.

From the spot where you stand on the bank pick out some object on the opposite bank—a stone, tree, or even a tuft of grass, provided that it is exactly opposite where you stand. Then walk, say 100 yards, to the right and place a peg in the ground. Then retrace your steps for half the distance (50 yards), and put in a second peg. Go back to the 100 yards' peg and walk away with your back to it, in a straight line until you reach a point where the 50 peg and the object on the opposite bank are in a straight line. The distance between you and the 100-yard peg is exactly the width of Make a diagram, and you will see that the geometrical proof of this is quite easy.

Thus argued Nancy Grace to her-self, even when the opportunity came to teach Ridge School, in Dis-trict 108, Highland Park, Ill., an opportunity she could not well refuse, since it came through a wellmeaning friend, although at the time she could not see this. She felt disgraced. Nothing short of a superintendency somewhere had entered her thought. Why, anybody could teach a rural school. ### Renewed Demand for Rails and Motors - Some Leaders Heavy

NEW YORK, Aug.19 (P)—Buying of epresentative railroad, motor and oil hares imparted a firm tone to stock rading at the opening of today's mar-

Ret.
Pierce-Arrow issues, Mack Trucks and Hudson Motors continued to lead the recovery in this group, while Chesapeake & Ohio and Norfolk & Western were in the forefront of the advance among investment rails.

Reports made to President Coolidge of nation-wide prosperity, as demon-strated by the barometer of mail order sales, were favorably received in the stock market, and were instrumen-tal in the resumption of active buying for both accounts.

Both chain store and mail order issues took an active part in the early upturn of prices. There was renewed bidding for Mack Trucks, Pierce-Arrow preferred and General Asphalt, all of which reached the highest levels on the current rise.

Spurt In Olls

Prospects for a revision of class rates in the West, combined with the steady expansion of the crop moyement, stimulated buying of the grain carriers, such as Chicago & North Western and Pere Marquette. United States Steel and other recent leaders continued to lose ground.

Foreign exchanges were steady, with French and Belgian francs holding well above 2% cents. Sterling was un-

U. S. Steel went down 2½ to 152¼, he lowest since it began its recent etback. General Motors lost a similar mount, and Mack Trucks relinquished amount, and Mack Trucks relinquished all of its early advance.

Oils spurted up briskly, and the southern and southwestern railroads were accumulated on a large scale, Missouri Pacific touching 41½ and Chesapeake' & Ohio 154%, both new tops for the year.

The renewal rate on call loans was retained at 4½ per cart.

retained at 4½ per cent.

Convertible Bonds Strong he bond market was unable to esablish a definite trend today, although buying activities in various sections of the list were more aggressive. Under the cover of brisk advances in a few miscellaneous issues, the slow move-ment of liquidation continued to hold back the majority of standard railroad and industrial liens. The bidding up of convertible bonds, putting them into line with the higher prices of stocks, was the principal fea-ture of the day's dealings. Chesapeake & Ohic convertible 5s reached new high ground above 152 as the result of renewed activity on the Nickel Plate merger plan, and Skelly Oil 6½s mounted more than 3 points to a level not far from the high record attained earlier in the summer.

Realizing sales accounted almost entirely for fractional recessions in a number of railroad issues, including Norfolk & Western divisional 4s, Ontario & Western refunding 4s and Norfolk Southern refunding 5s. Warner, Cuban-Dominican and other active sugar company bonds were heavy.

Foreign obligations were firm, but Peru 7½s declined a half point in the face of the announcement that a $16,000,000 30-year 7½ per cent loan for that Republic would be offered tomorrow. The procededs will be applied to the establishment of a national agricultural bank and the retirment of various public works obligations.

VAN SWERINGENS MAKING EFFORT TO SATISFY OPPOSITION

NEW YORK, Aug. 19-It is exected in some quarters that the Van

Sweringens will not submit their new Nickel Plate merger proposal to the Interstate Commerce Commission until they have made every effort to satisfy the opposition of Chesapeake & Ohio and Hocking Valley minority groups.

There are unofficial reports that Van Sweringen interests have been negotiating with certain Chesapeake & Ohio minority interests.

Richmond advices say it is not improbable that the Van Sweringen interests have been in conference with Frederick W. Scott, Richmond banker, through whom they hope to come to terms with the Chesapeake & Ohio minority committee. Although not a member of the minority committee, Mr. Scott is one of the largest stockholders represented by it, and probably has more influence than any one on the committee.

The subcommittee of directors of committee.

The subcommittee of directors of Hocking Valley appointed in July to consider the New Nickel Plate proposal has met twice but has not reached a conclusion. The committee is not expected to report back to the directors before next month, as several members are on vacation trips.

As the Erie directors must still act on the new plan, it does not appear likely that the new proposal can be submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission until the latter part of September.

September.

It is a distinct possibility that new terms may be granted Chesapeake & Ohio and Hocking stockholders to satisfy the opposition of the minority groups, in which case action will have to be taken by directorates of all roads and the presentation before the Interstate Commerce Commission will be delayed.

STOCKS STEADY IN LONDON MARKET, BUT TRADING IS LIGHT

LONDON, Aug. 19—The stock market was steady today, but dealings remained small as traders awaited the outcome of the coal conference.

Industrial prices were well maintained. Courtaulds was in good demand. Rubber securities were firmer with the rise in the staple. Oils were dull. Royal Dutch was quotted at 31%, Rio Tinto 39% and Courtaulds 5%.

The gilt-endge division was steady, but there was some talk of higher money rates due to the stiffening of the money market in the United States.

COPPER PRODUCTION NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (F)—The output amelier copper in July by the princal producing companies of the world is 344,000 pounds greater than the inth before, amounting to 248,544,000 unds. Production for the seven months the year was 1,824,956,000 pounds comred with 1,780,002,000 pounds in the responding period of 1925. Smelters in United States produced 152,734,000 unds in July compared with 154,322.

CHICAGO BUSINESS MEN SEE GOOD TRADE IN COMING MONTHS

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Although urging continued conservatism, several leading bankers and business men of Chicago look for satisfactory business during the remaining months of 1926. Just how large the volume will be will depend in most lines on the crops. Trade reviews report "a good toge in practically all lines" and that "conditions continue excellent, with midsummer dullness less than normal in many lines."

Marshall Field again reports of $10,000,000 and increasing the surplus account $514,000 to a total of $14,744,—000. The Bank of America account $14,744,—000.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19—Stanley Company of America stockholders ap-proved a plan for the acquisition of three chain-theater companies. These proved a plan for the acquisition of three chain-theater companies. These properties will be acquired through exchange of stock of the Stanley Company, stockholders' approval providing for the issuance of a lot in excess of 250,000 shares for this purpose.

The companies to be taken over are the Mark-Strand in New York state, Fabian-Stern in northern New Jersey, and the Rowland-Clark in Pittsburgh. Stockholders also voted an amendment to by-laws increasing the board of directors from 15 to 13, and elected, Moe Mark, Jacob Fabian, and James B. Clark to fill the new places.

John J. McGuirk, vice-president of Stanley Company, said after the meeting: "The board of directors consider the acquisition of the chains, together with the services of such men as Moe Mark, Jacob Fabian, and James B. Clark, one of the most far-reaching and constructive steps in the history of the company."

IRREGULAR TREND IN WHEAT PRICES

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Influenced by unexpected weakness of quotations at Liverpool, the wheat market here averaged lower today during the early dealings. Complaints of excessive rains northwest, however, tended to give wheat values here a firmer undertone, starting at %c decline to a like advance, wheat underwent a moderate general sag. Corn and oats were easier, corn opening ¼ to %c off, and subsequently receding a little more. Provisions scored gains.

The Bureau of Railway Economies has made an analysis showing that in 1925 the railroads had to spend $155 a freight car to keep it in running order, compared with $158 in 1924; $1552 a passenger car, compared with $1592 a year ago, and $7023 a locomotive, compared with $17155 last year.

These expenditures seem small enough in themselves, maintenance of a freight car, for instance, costing hardly more than a set of tires for a good automobile. Yet, multiplied by 2,400,000 freight cars on Class 1 roads it means an expenditure of $372,141, profits $60,533,000 an increase for the year of $5,714,000.

NET EARNINGS OF NEW YORK CITY'S STATE BANKS LARGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—The tabulation of the operations of the 24 state banks in New York City for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1926, shows the total net earnings of these institutions for the year amounted to $10.860,500 according to Financial Age. In the same period dividends to the amount of $7,331,500 were paid to shareholders. The total capital stock issued is $48,350,000 and present surplus and profits $60,533,000 an increase for the year of $5,714,000.

Among the larger banks the Corn Exchange Bank with the total net funds of $248,930,000 earned net $3,048,000 or 30.5 per cent on its capital of $10,000,000.

Money rates have been somewhat firmer, with commercial paper ranging from 4½ per cent to 4½ per cent.

Debits to individual accounts in this reserve district for the latest week reported were 1.0, per cent above the preceding week and 4.7 per cent above last year. Debits gained over 1925 in the largest four cities.

The two leading mail-order houses are having another successful year, each month thus far having shown sales gains for both over a year ago. Well managed mail-order houses benefit in good times from increased buying power of customers, while in bad times the savings they advertise attract customers.

BURNS BROS. EARNINGS

Burns Brothers and subsidiaries report for the quarter ended June 30, 1926, a net of profit $564,846 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal, after prior preference and preferred dividends, to $3.60 a share on 97,365 shares of Class A common and $1.60 a share on 97.367 shares of Class B common, compared with $416,924, or $3.21 a share on 80,940 shares of Class B common and $1.21 a share on 80,940 shares of Class B common on the second quarter of 1925. After cumulative dividends have been paid on $3 a share, Class B common shares ratably with Class A, share for share, in any further distribution.

STRUCTURAL STEEL ORDERS CHICAGO, Aug. 19—The Illinois Steel Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, was awarded an order for 3600 tons of structural steel for the 1927 bridge requirements of the Great Northern Railroad, also 600 tons for a bridge at Brewster, Wash. An order for 2100 tons for the La Salle Street bascule, bridge, Chicago, went to the Strobel Steel Construction Company, the steel to be fabricated by the Mount Vernon Bridge Company.

UNIVERSAL CHAIN THEATERS UNIVERSAL CHAIN THEATERS
NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Universal Chain Theaters Corporation has signed contracts for the erection of two new large motion picture houses, one at Joplin, Mo., the other at Kenosha, Wis. The Joplin structure will cost approximately $520,000 and seat 2000, while that at Kenosha will cost about $456,000 and seat 2018.
Each will be a combination of theater, store and apartments. The company now has more than 220 motion picture establishments in operation.

BRITISH IRON OUTPUT LONDON, Aug. 19—British output of pig iron in July was 17,900 tons, compared with 41,800 in June and 492,700 in July, 1925. July output of steel ingots and castings was 32,100 tons, compared with 32,800 in June and 590,400 in July of last year. Only eight blast furneces were active Aug. 1. compared with 11 a month before and 136 a year ago.

MOTION PICTURE CAPITAL Motion Picture Capital Corporation including subsidiaries for the six months ended June 30, reports net income of $230,767 after interest, federal taxes, etc. Net income for the second quarter of 1926 was $116,567, compared with $114,100 in the previous quarter.

NEW YORK CURB ST. PAUL ROAD PROSPERS UNDER RECEIVERSHIP

Expects to Have $15,000,000 for Rehabilitation and Improvements

A year and five months have passed since St. Paul receivers were appointed, and indications are that they will easily round out two years of service.

In that time they will have had not less than $15,000,000 available from surplus income for rehabilitation, improvements and general strengthening of the property.

That sum represents the indicated difference between earnings available for fixed charges and the charges actually paid by the receivers. For 1925, St. Paul reported a deficit of $3.867.012 after all accrued charges

There was, therefore, a balance of $7,234,040 remaining from the year's income to apply upon betterments. Operating Expenses

Receiver Potter says that St. Paul's income for fixed charges this year should be $20,000,000. The charges will be raised to about $22,375,000 by interest on the last issue of equipment trusts, and the amount the receivers will have paid will presumably be $11,275,000 or thereabouts. On that basis the current year would yield an additional $8,725,000 of surplus income, making close to $16,-000,000 for this year and last. Earnings during the rest of this year may fall below Receiver Potter's esti-mate, of course, but at the moment they seem rather more likely to go

In addition to the clear surplus above indicated, the receivers have charged operating expenses rather freely for maintenance. In 1925 they so charged $5,252,300 more than the maintenance of the year before, bringing the ratio of such expenditures to gross revenues up to 38.1 per cent compared with 35.7 per cent in 1924, and that in a year in which they managed to reduce transportation expenses considerably. Improvement Money

Under ordinary circumstances the maintenance ratio of 1924 would doubtless have been adequate in 1925, so that $4,000,000 of the increase may fairly be set down as improvement money. For the first half of 1926, the maintenance accounts show no great net change from those of last year. Unless the present policy of the receivers undergoes a change, there will probably be $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 of rehabilitation in this year's maintenance

In a tentative calculation it may be put down that a two-year receivership will see something like $24,000,000 of earnings and income plowed back into the St. Paul's 11,000-mile system, or nearly $2200 a mile.

The expenditure is not, of course, being distributed as evenly as that, but only where it is most likely to produce only where it is most fixely to produce savings or earnings, or both.

In six months of this year, the road, with slightly more traffic and revenue than in the corresponding portion of 1925, reduced transportation expenses by $730,000 and the net debit against the produced transportation expenses by $730,000 and the net debit against facility. it on car hire and joint facility accounts by $356,000. These items re-flect the results of physical improvement in the carrier. Equipment Purchases

Of a different class, but nevertheless contributing to operating efficiency and better net, was the money from sale of $9,270,000 5 per cent equipment trust certificates. Supplemented by cash otherwise available, this issue financed the purchase of more than $12,000,000 of new equipment.

St. Paul practically doubled its net

$6,171,467 compared with $3,142,656.
Nothing like that, of course, is expected for the second half.
In 1925 the year's net operating income of $18,169,000 was split $3,142,000 and $15,027,000 between the first and second six months; in 1924 it was $4,-315,000 and $16,433,000.

Allowing for probable other income,

second six months; in 13c4 it was $4,5

131,000 and $16,433,000.

Allowing for probable other income, Receiver Potter's estimate mentioned above evidently counts on operating net for the second half of this year of 174, no more than about $13,000,000.

If, on the other hand, the second six months were only as good as in last year and other income amounted to upward of $1,000,000 as it did last year, 14, 1926 would show better than $22,000,-15, was an increase in total charges ahead of stock of secord Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 20 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 12, and a regular dividend of 20 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the first preferred stock, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the first preferred stock, payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20, and a regular dividend of 314 cents a share on the preferred payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20.

The total for the week ended the regular quarterly dividend of 184 cents on the common stock payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept 20.

The total for the week ended the 1,000, and a regular dividend of 31,000, pool and a regular dividend of 31,000, pool cen modities being reported compared with the previous week, with the exception of coke, ore, and merchandise, and less-than-carload-lot freight.

Coal loadings for the week amounted to 183,088 cars, a decrease of 5521 cars under the preceding week this year, and 6901 cars under the corresponding week in 1925. It was, however, 33,302 ears more than the corresponding week in 1924.

COMMONWEALTH POWER Earnings of the Commonwealth Power Corporation and subsidiaries for the 12 months ended July 31, 1926, applicable to dividends and retirement reserve amounted to $9,615,376, or $26.24 a share on the outstanding $66,378 shares of preferred stock and $6.51 a share on the 1,138,922 shares of common stock. Afterprovision for retirement reserve earnings amounted to $17.35 a share on the preferred and $3.65 a share on the common as compared with $12.26 and $2.03 respectively for the corresponding period last year, based on the same number of shares now outstanding.

DETROIT SUBWAYS PROPOSED
DETROIT, Aug. 19—After months of study the Detroit rapid transit commission submitted to the city council an initial rapid transit plan calling for 46.6 miles of subway at a cost of $187.798,000. The commission recommended the proposal be submitted to voters at the November election. At present there are no subways in Detroit.

NEW YORK CITY'S PRESENT BUILDING SLUMP ANALYZED

NEW York, Aug. 19-Three major reasons for the present slump in New York City building construction are given by A. E. Beals in the Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Over-valuation of building projects is one. Inefficiency of labor is another The third deals with trade union rules giving satisfaction and service to the owner are not available as they are in the manufacturing shop.

These three factors alone are sufficient to prevent early relief from high rentals, Mr. Beals said, but the practice, of overvaluation of building projects has started the cost of building on an upward course which is already choking prosperity in the building construction industry of New fork City.

The building investing public is very soon going to learn some startling things about operation of modernized "shoestring" building and financing, Mr. Beals states. Actual conditions that conservative building financiers identified as dangerous and publicly warned building investory against let. warned building investors against last December have their complete fulfilment in the fact that New York City building construction in July was the lowest in 15 months. July construction decreased 25 per cent from June this year and 35 per cent from last year.

In the borough of Manhattan alone, during the seven months of the pres-ent year plans were filed for 474 buildings, compared with 602 for the corresponding period last year, and the building department's recorded cost of these buildings this year was $170,-173,463, compared with $184,037,247 during the corresponding period last

INSTALLATION OF LIGHTING UNITS IN CHICAGO INCREASED

SCHENECTADY, Aug. 19-With the addition of 7000 more ornamental novalux street lighting units, which will be in operation by Dec. 15 of this year. Chicago will have the largest installation of modern residential incandescent street lights of one type of any city in the country.

Three previous orders for a total of 15,500 units have already been installed, which will make a total of 22,-500 lights, sufficient to illuminate more than 500 miles of Chicago's streets. All the lighting units have been sup-plied by the General Electric Company. operating income in the first six months of this year, comparing with the corresponding period of 1925—globes, mounted on 12-foot concrete octagonal poles, manufactured by the Chicago Concrete Pole Company.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (P)—Production at the Kipawa mill of the International Paper Company at Temiskaming, Quebec, is now devoted entirely to sulphite pulpused in the manufacture of rayon. This step has been necessitated by the demand for raw material resulting from the reduction of rayon prices on June 1. The mill is said to produce about one-half of all wood pulp used in the manufacture of rayon throughout the world, the product going to many foreign countries, including Japan.

ANOTHER BIG COTTON CROP IN PROSPECT

Next Government Estimate Is Expected to Reach 16,000,000 Bales

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19 (Special)

—The cotton belt of America stands on the threshold of producing another great crop, possibly as large as last year's record-breaker. Actual ginnings for the cotton year closing the first of this month were 16,103,000 bales.

Consequently the southern cotton crop at the present moment is the cynosure of spinners in America, England, France, Italy, Germany, Poland, Japan, and other smaller manufacturing countries, and the thousands of ing countries, and the thousands of traders interested in cotton directly.

The United States crop reporting board says that southern farmers this spring put slightly less than 49,000,000 seres in cotton

The last estimate of the Commercial Appeal, Memphis daily newspaper which makes a specialty of cotton crop statistics, was for a yield of 15,900,900 bales for the approaching harvest. that estimate, however, the pa-Since that estimate, however, the paper finds the crop has improved until the last day or two. As a result the next Government estimate, due to be published Monday, Aug. 23, is expected to reach 16,000,000 bales or about 350,000 bales greater than its estimate on Aug. 8, However, it is admitted that weather conditions and insect damage will control the final yield. It may be 21,500,000 bales or it may be 32,500,000 bales or it may be 38, low be 17,500,000 bales or it may be as low as 14,500,000 bales, says the Commer-

Better Texas Situation

Better Texas Situation

One of the reasons for the anticipated large yield has been the better situation in Texas. Last year, one of the most severe droughts on record cut the State's production in half. Texas is capable of growing 33 per cent of the total American crop, and this year it has had plenty of moisture.

The price of the meek cotton sock and its kinsmen, the cotton shirt and cotton underwear, is largely dependent upon the supply and demand. As a result of last year's big crop, a "carry-over" of 5,362,000 bales was on hand at the beginning of the season, Aug. 1, compared with a normal of around 3,000,000 bales.

Receipts at Memphis Thus if the coming crop yields 18,000,000 bales, the total available supply of American cotton, including the carof one of the comments of the if consumption for the coming 12 months is no larger than the 15,165,000 bales used during the past 12 months, there will be a much larger surplus.

Of interest to the cotton trade is the fact that the interior port of Memphis broke three previous records in han-dling cotton of the passing crop. Net receipts at Memphis, consisting strictly of local cotton were 754,000 bales, or 2000 bales greater than the previous record set in 1916. Gross receipts lacked only 370 bales of reaching the 2,000,000 mark.

The previous record in gross receipts, which includes all cotton handled, was 1,422,000 bales in 1918. The third record was the 12.81 per cent of the total crop produced that was handled at this port. The previous record was 11.94 per cent in 1918. Great North 4½s

WALWORTH SECOND QUARTER EARNINGS

Financial Position The company is in first-class financial position. Its borrowings at the moment do not vary materially from the approximate $12,000,000 figure as of Dec. 31 last. Thus rumors of finan-cial strain are without foundation. In the clothing trade considerable optimism for the first time in several years is being openly expressed over the outlook for the fall and winter That evidences a desire on the part of jobbers and manufacturers to buy American Woolen is now well through a year that would have been very trying to any but the most effi-cient and aggressive management. It has had to adjust itself to hand-tomouth buying, where in years gone by a season was a failure that did not bring in a flock of orders the first week. But in the face of all obstacles it has been making money.

Directors are scheduled to act on the preferred dividend in about a fort-night, and it is considered a foregone conclusion that the regular quarterly disbursement of $1.75 will be ordered.

FRANC CONTINUES UPWARD MOVEMENT IN PARIS MARKET

PARIS, Aug. 19 (P)—A new upward movement of the franc, which began with New York's favorable quo-tations on Tuesday, continued today until it carried the dollar down to 34.52, a drop of 2.19 francs in two days. Paris has been following the lead of New York in this movement, although regarded as probable.

French financiers explain the strength of the franc under these conditions as confirmation of their contention that French money has been artificially held far below its real value for many months. value for many months.

in China will be seriously menaced by the termination of the rights and privileges known as extraterritoriality. And so the establishment of a stable central government at Peking, with a reasonable hope of its maintenance, in all probability means the voluntary abandonment by Europe of special privilege in China.

A Significant Step

To this end, then, no more significant step has been taken than the offer to return the Shanghai Mixed Court to Chinese jurisdiction. This court, which is composed of several European judges and one Chinese, with two blue bands at the tops—has been for the past 15 years entirely under foreign control. If a Chinese had a grievance, civil or criminal, against a European his Europe and South America, flying the control of the steamship Resolute at New York, the second of the three ships sold by the United American Lines to the Hamburg-American Lines appearance owned by the United American Lines, was replaced by the German flag, also has disappeared from the transplant of the transplant of the steamship Resolute at New York, the second of the three ships sold by the United American Lines, was replaced by the German flag, also has disappeared from the transplant of the United American Lines flag and the United American Lines flag and the United American Lines flag formerly flown by the Resolute and Reliance, even while the United American Lines, was replaced by the German flag, also has disappeared from the transplant of the United American Lines, was replaced by the United American Lines, and the replaced by the United American Lines, was replaced by the United American Lines, and the replaced by the United American Lines, was replaced by the United American Lines, and the replaced by the United American Lines, was replaced by the United American Lines, the lines of the steamship Resolute and Reliance, even while the United American Lines, was replaced by the

Company Reports Half-Year Profits Are 73 Per Cent Ahead of 1925

The Rockland & Rockport Lime Corporation on June 30 last concluded a successful half-year, with net earnings after taxes and depreciation some 73 per cent larger than for the cor-responding period a year ago. Net for the six months was $89,651 compared with $51,941 in 1925. Gross business increased from $832,147 in the first half of 1925 to $924,545 in the corresponding period of 1926, or 11 per cent.

It is apparent, therefore, that the company had the benefit this year of a better control of expenses, as the gain in net was relatively much larger than the improvement in gross. The company is pushing a new brand of lime which is taking very well with the trade.

After interest charges Rockland & Rockport earned in the six months to June 30 last $65,884 available for dividends. There was reserved for diviplement the Boston and New York dividends. There was reserved for dividends names, by two more steamers, it is learned from authoritative sources. From time to time, it has been reported that the line contemplated maintaining double daily service. The business would not warrant this it is said and further the inwas equal to $2.24 a share for the period on the $781,300 common.
The company is paying dividends on the preferred issues but suspended payments on the common Feb. 1 last.

Rockland & Rockport Lime Corpo ration averaged to earn its interest charges 5.4 times in the five years ending Dec. 31, 1925. Its net tangible assets are $3,430,991 and net quick Registered at the Christian

He "Keeps Tabs" on the Weather

HE gentleman in the above picture is E. B. Calvert of the United States Weather Bureau, who operates a system by which 133 radiocast stations and 33 telegraph stations, throughout the United States give a weather forecast. It is a great game "keeping tabs" on the weather, and with the modern means of communication, improvements in meteorological instruments, and detailed methods of recording, the weather man in Washington plays checkers with high and low pressure areas on a map of the United States—only nature makes all the moves. Moreover, through a better knowledge of the weather than was possible in previous years, farmers are now saving millions of dollars each season.

PACIFIC COAST RADIOCASTERS CO-OPERATING

Radio Would Be Destroyed Unless Radiocasting Were Well Regulated

SAN FRANCISCO (Staff Correspondence)-Radiocasting and the assignment of wavelengths is a subfect uppermost in the counsels of radio dealers and experts in attendance at the Pacific Radio Trade Exretary of Commerce right under the existing law to assign wavelengths or to regulate the power or hours of operations of stations, has given concern to the entire industry since the efficiency. cern to the entire industry since the efficiency of radiocasting depends on "A little rerious thought on the subject must convince one that the entire radio 'industry, in which there are now more than $10,000,000 in vested, is founded upon radio broadcasting. Were it not for the splendid programs broadcast by the various stations throughout the country, there would be no radio industry twhatever. If we admit these preme whatever. If we admit these premises, then it must be conceded that the stations which have been operating since the inception of radiocasting and rendering most satisfactory service to the public are entitled to protection and freedom from inter-ference by ave pirates or new en-tries into the broadcasting field. Un-less these principles are observed, a protection and freedom from interference by "ave pirates or new entries into the broadcasting field. ing stations of receiving apparatus, which it vill require years to rebuild. "Among the broadcast stations of the Sixth District there has always existed a splendid sense of co-operation and a desire to safeguard the interest of the public and of the industry in every respect. The large established stations which are now enjoying advantages in wavelengths are, of course, anxious that the situation remain unchanged. However, in view of the lack of any legal restraint, stations which are handicapped by exceedingly short wavelengths are reluctant to operate under that disadvantage if it is possible to select wavelengths which will improve their range and reception by the public, if it can be accomplished without detriment to other stations. Personally, I feel quite optimistic regarding the development of the existing situation."

WOMAN NAMED COURT CLERK WOMAN NAMED COURT CLERK-BARNSTABLE, Mass., Aug. 19—Miss Ruth C. ## EDITORIALS

In these columns references have recently been made to the challenges to democracy

Democratic Institutions and Democracy which have been raised almost simultaneously in a number of European countries; but there is one aspect of the subject which has perhaps been scarcely sufficiently emphasized. What has happened in France fur-nishes an illustration of the fact that, whether the machinery of democracy is satisfactory or not, the people always manage sooner or later to make their wishes felt, and to obtain their own way, which is usually the right way.

It may be that there is much to criticize in parliamentary and other institutions, and that no adequate solution has yet been found of the problem of permitting the people to govern themselves. But though the people cannot be expected to have technical knowledge, they have a collective wisdom which must manifest itself. If they do not know, they feel. If they are misrepresented, they assert themselves. In other words, democratic institutions may possibly fail temporarily, but democracy does not fail.

The distinction is not a purely verbal distinction. It is important, it is fundamental. The French Parliament, it cannot be denied, presented a sorry spectacle, with its intrigues and party rivalries, with its clash of theories, with its rage of destructive criticism; and while it was upsetting ministry after ministry, while it was talking interminably, while it was indulging in the most expensive negations, the franc was falling. It seemed that parliamentary government had broken down, and because it had broken down that France would go through the same experiences as other countries where the depreciation of the money had more solid causes. It was precisely at this point that the sound sense of the people was displayed.

There was no constitutional machinery by which an expression of public will could be uttered. Yet when the people suddenly became aware that the franc was being talked to extinction, that ministers who were distrusted were returning to power, a few harmless but significant manifestations outside the Elysée, the presidential residence, and outside the Palais-Bourbon, the parliamentary headquarters, produced results which appeared to be almost impossible. There is, after all, something in the instinct of the crowd. Disaster was thought, even by usually optimistic observers, to be imminent, when the people came on the scene and changed everything in the twinkling of an eye.

The French authorities were conscious that a drastic reversal of methods was necessary. Parliament, which had been unruly, became alarmed, dismissed an unpopular Prime Minister, and prepared itself to follow M. Poincaré, in whom the people demonstrated their confidence. Many ministers had tried in vain to accomplish what M. Poincaré, carried on the crest of the popular demand, accomplished easily, practically without opposition. The deputies, who had refused other leadership, accepted the leadership of a man who was supported by public opinion. They ceased idle dis-They abandoned mischievous intrigues. They reformed themselves completely. This was in spite of the supposed majority which, on party lines, was ranged against M.

In one respect nobody seemed to be less suited to the formidable task of imposing a plan on Parliament than M. Poincaré; for two years earlier he had been beaten at the polls by the men who compose the present Chamber. Moreover, politics apart, there were many men who could not readily forgive him for the Ruhr experiment, which they believed to be utterly mistaken and unfortunate in its results. Yet they were compelled to recognize that M. Poincaré acted honestly in what he conceived to be the national interest. In any case, the people were persuaded that M. Poincaré was not a party politician but a national statesman. and when they ranged themselves behind him he had no difficulty in rallying the Chamber, and for the first time for years in driving through salutary fiscal measures which would certainly bear heavily on the whole population.

Others had shrunk from proposing them, lest they should incur electoral unpopularity. The people do not, in the long run, object to bearing burdens which are necessary, and nobody who tries to tell the truth, unpleasant as it may be, is condemned by the public. The politician is too often a man of little faith, who is needlessly afraid of being unpopular, and thus actually becomes unpopular. It is perhaps too early to pronounce on the accomplishments of the Poincaré Ministry, but it is not too early to point out the lesson that, whatever be the shortcomings of democratic institutions, it is wrong to doubt democracy.

Possibly the most remarkable edict issued by the present Dictator of Italy is his "law against idleness." which provides that all adult males shall engage in some useful occupation. In his justi-fication of this statute Premier Mussolini declared: "The existence of privileged individuals, for whom life's sole enjoyment is to profit by the work of others, is wholly inadmissible."

The doctrine that all men capable of performing some useful task should find employment is not new. The novelty is in its acceptance by the government of an important nation, confronted with grave social and economic problems affecting the welfare of the great majority of its people. To the universal complaint of low living standards, insufficient food and clothing, and poor housing accommodations, the manifest response was: "These conditions can only be changed by work. Therefore, all should, and must, work." But with this situation recognized by law there remains the further important ques-tion! "What shall be regarded as useful employ-

In reply to the criticisms of British Socialists hua Stamp, a well-known economist, recently asserted that the number of those described as "the idle rich of Britain" was in reality very small, and that the great majority of all those receiving large incomes were busily engaged in various duties imposed upon them by reason of their possessions. Conceding that wealth brings its responsibilities, and that many large fortunes are the product of special managerial or financial abilities, here, also, arises the query: "Is the work performed beneficial to society, or to the individual alone?"

Just where is the line to be drawn between useful occupations and activities that confer no service in payment for benefits received? Out on the plains of Kansas sturdy field workers have been harvesting the wheat crop, absolutely essential to sustain the teeming population of the cities and industrial centers. In a great building in New York City some scores of men are daily buying and selling wheat; not for delivery to the flour mills, or for export, but merely with a view to profiting by changes in the market price. These "brokers" are ostensibly "working," just as the wheat grower and his hired men "work," but there is a very substantial difference in results. In the case of the farmers, their work produces needed wealth in the form of grain. Conceding that buying and selling this grain for speculative purposes is work, it might be hard to convince Il Duce that the brokers are giving services that entitle them to a share of the wealth produced by others.

The July number of the United States Naval Institute Proceedings contains a very suggestive

The Value of International Conferences

article, "The New Era in International Law," by an officer of the United States Navy, Lieutenant Commander Lucius C. Dunn. It is of importance because of the great stress it lays upon the part played in the maintenance of peace by a wider interest in international affairs. As a navy officer Commander Dunn cannot be denied his fling at "the pitiable pacifist advocates—those emotional theorists and their peace-at-any-price doctrines." But he recognizes the fact that an active and intelligent interest in international affairs by no means precludes a thorough understanding of the necessity for adequate equipment for national defense.

There is great value in Commander Dunn's brief summing-up of the essays in international co-operation during the last fifty years which have led up to what he holds to be a new era in international law. International conferences have not always assured peace. That the world knows too well. Ever since the Berlin Conference of 1878 the nations of Europe have more and more often sat around a council board, yet the cataclysm of 1914 was not averted. Nevertheless it is reasonable to believe that the more things nations have in common the less they are apt to quarrel.

Among the recent conventions are the International Postal Union, the Conference of International Sanitation, International Marine Conference, Congress for Adopting a Common Meridian, and International Labor Congress. Under the League of Nations are many conferences such as those on narcotic drugs and that on the labor of women and children. Only recently a Pan-American Press Conference was held in Washington, and delegates are now on the way to an International Press Conference in Geneva. An international commission is codifying international law, and the International Chamber of Commerce is at all times a force for the establishment of better commercial relations between nations. And of supreme importance is the preliminary Conference for the Limitation of Armament now sitting at Geneva.

Commander Dunn sees in all this a reason why navy officers should be ardent observers of foreign affairs and well versed in international law. That is, however, too narrowly technical a view. The more widely knowledge of the thought and activities of foreign nations is spread among the American people the less will be the danger of those international misunderstandings which so frequently culminate in war. It is for this reason that such institutions as the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., perform a true service to humanity, and it is for the same reason that the growing interest of the American press in foreign affairs is a healthful and a helpful symptom. As Americans develop the international consciousness they will lose that parochial narrowness that sees only potential enemies in foreign nations.

Those who in the past have painted a picture in dark colors regarding the exodus of farmers to the cities in certain sections of the United The Exodus States may be pleasantly surprised to learn, of Farmers on the authority of L. E. Call, dean of agto the Cities riculture at Kansas State Agricultural College, that, rather than being a cause for alarm, this exodus, in his opinion, should be viewed as a boon to agriculture. And his explanation is simplicity itself. The successful farmers, those who are capable producers and efficient in marketing their crops, are remaining to till the crops, he says, and although there does exist some movement of the farmers to the cities, this he sees as an indication that some of the farmers are by nature bet ter fitted for industries or business other than

One is prepared, therefore, for Mr. Call's further statement that it is better for American agriculture that those farmers who are unable to apply the most efficient methods of tillage and production to the farming operations and who, hence, can make less money working the soil than would be the case if they were engaged in other forms of labor, should go into other industries. And Mr. Call is of the opinion that those farmers who do stick to the soil are more contented and happy than ever before, provided the discontented and more radical ones do leave the farm. It is true that he considers the one essential factor which causes many to leave the farm is that of failure to make as much money in agriculture as they would do in industry, but he also emphasizes the many benefits that the farmer of today has over his father and grandfather, which would tend to keep him in the country.

In much of the discussion of this and kindred subjects there is a tendency to forget the essential leveling process operating in society today. A migration of some sort or another is noticed and commented upon, adversely or otherwise, without a full appreciation of the fact that, given sufficient time, the apparent inequality being produced will largely receive its compensation. The farmers in the United States have much whereof to complain, but the inevitable process of balance of industry will practically insure that, if there is a loss in one direction, it will be made up for in another.

This does not mean that the farmers should not agitate for and obtain needful adjustments in their activities. It rather involves the conclusion that both they and all others similarly situated, would do well to recognize quietly the great basic law that underlies civilization in its adaptation to environment and general conditions Some farmers in the United States may be leaving their farms, but others will be spurred on thereby to employing more efficient means of obtaining their livelihood. It is still true, and will long continue to be so, as Daniel Webster said more than eighty years ago, the farmers are the founders of human civilization. One can have faith, therefore, that a sufficient number of them will cling to the soil.

The conference tables of Hollywood, Calif., far from being agitated over the influx of Euro-

Invasion

pean films that are showing in the United States with such notable artistic success, are becoming festival boards laid out in the name of international amity and wide co-operation. No longer do "foreign" films loom threateningly on the Hollywood horizon as they did some three years ago, with the possibility of endangering the long monopoly of American-made pictures. Nor is there any appreciable feeling at the steady infiltration of European directors and stars into the inner circles of the screen capital. Rather is this new "invasion" motivated by the west coast picture magnates themselves, in their desire to increase the artistic resources of the studios. Hollywood has had, for quite some time, a considerable "foreign" colony, with such distinguished masters of cinematography as Lubitsch, Seastrom, and von Stroheim conspicuous on its roster. There has also been a certain coterie of continental actors and actresses scattered through the studios, but negligible in number compared with the present delegation. Today there are literally dozens of stars, directors, technical advisers, specialists, and experts of one sort or another to be found on the studio lots speaking "other" tongues. Russian, French, Danish, Polish, Swedish, Hungarian, and Italian are the most likely languages to be met with, and in certain picture units English is noticeably conspicuous by its absence.

Such, then, is the present polyglot state of things in Hollywood, and it seems certain that this hands-across-the-sea phase of pictures will underwrite a large measure of good for the screen. Since one of Hollywood's gravest dangers lies in its almost complete lack of competition, this wholesale importation of European talent is bound to serve as a timely stimulus. With such newcomers as Murnau, Pommer, Jannings, and Dupont-to mention but a few of the more important—working alongside the American contingent, the standardization of production inevitably resulting from a too great and prolonged monopoly will be largely averted. Not only should these continental artists strive among themselves to set new and higher standards, but there will doubtless be a friendly rivalry all along the line. Each group can learn from the other. The European, accustomed to working at half the speed and quarter the cost, will learn valuable lessons in efficiency and equipment from his American brother, while the Hollywoodian will sense the benefits of a less intensive production schedule and a more individual camera treatment. This give and take should help to advance the new school of

Editorial Notes

Sing a song of sixpence, A pocket full of rye. Four and twenty blackbirds Baked in a pie.

At least, that is the rhyme that has been handed down from father to son for many years, but now a different version is surely called for, since President Coolidge was presented with a huge cherry pie by the Grand Traverse Cherry Growers of Michigan. The dainty dish weighed the little matter of fortysix pounds, was thirty inches in diameter and four inches deep, while it contained, so it is said, 5000 cherries. Just to show what a pie can do, it appears that while it was being brought to Mr. Coolidge in an automobile, the driver was stopped by a speed policeman in Canada, but was allowed to proceed without a fine on explaining his mission, the officer saying that international comity ought to prevail in such a case. Of course, all this does not help in reaching a decision as to what to do with so much pie. But it is safe to say that cherry pie hot, cherry pie cold, cherry pie in the pot nine days old will not be far from the actual state of affairs.

What R. G. Hogarth, president of the British Medical Association, said in his opening address before the recent meeting of that organization in Nottingham, Eng., regarding the mental attitude of patients, is really quite striking, being based, as it evidently is, upon his wide practical experience. Here is how, in part, he. summed up his observations:

Between religion and nature, between mind and body, there exists not an opposition, but a relation. Every medical man of experience must have known cases in which his own scientific skill has seemed to be helped, sometimes most strangely and wonderfully by some se-renity of mind in the patient, some quiet confidence in the ultimate issue, some realization of sure dependence a Higher Power, some tranquilizing influence of the soul upon the physical stress and tumult of the senses.

The Shrine of the Sikhs

MORE nearly than many places in India, Amritsar fulfills the conception of what an Indian bazaar should be. Our tonga ponies pick their way through narrow, tortuous streets, crowded with a gavly colored. lively throng, the common people of the country jostling merchants from the north and west, Kashmiris, Afghans and Baluchis, come to do business in this famous city with its population of 150,000. High up on either side rise houses with finely carved wooden balconies, often harmoniously colored. In the open shops below, at intervals among the crude pink and saffron of the sweetmeat sellers, the piles of white rice and orange dhal of the grain dealers and the heterogeneous miscellany of household hardware, glimpses may be caught of things of real value, soft Kashmir shawls, gold embroidered silks of exquisite quality and design, and carpets dyed with quiet blues and reds of satisfying harmony.

That these are actually produced near by is evident from the deep blue dyes running to waste in the gullies at the sides of the streets. Everywhere that the eye rests is a picture, caught for an instant as the tonga jogs its tinkling way along.

Suddenly from the babel of color and sound we emerge into a wide and silent space. A still expanse of jade green water quivers in the sunshine, and in its midst on an island of marble is set the famous shrine we have come to see, the Golden Temple of Amritsar.

A simple square building, it has neither the exuberant license of the typical Hindu gopuram, or the extreme severity of the Moslem mosque. At each corner of the flat roof is set a light and graceful canopy, and in the center rises a dome, with curved sections as truly shaped as those of a watermelon. The whole is covered with sheets of gilded copper, with delicately worked designs, so that in very truth it is a golden temple, glittering and flashing in the intense sunlight.

A wide pavement of marble leads from the border of the great pool to the temple doorway, within which is the central shrine of the Sikh religion, the resting place of the "Granth," its holy book.

From this shrine, however, none is forbidden, provided only it is approached with due respect. Nothing of leather must be worn, and no alcohol or tobacco carried on the

Having complied with these requirements, and after washing the dust from our feet in a convenient trough, we were conducted barefoot along the marble approach The smooth stone surface, warmed by the sun, made this no great hardship. As we passed along we noted the gilded lamps, each fitted with electric bulbs, which were set at intervals on the low walls which flanked the wide

We are asked to step over, not on, the marble doorsill of the entrance, an obvious precaution against the wearing away of the stone. Immediately beyond the threshold is the main chamber of the temple, where the holy book reposes under scarlet drapery, and around it sit the chanters and musicians continuously sounding its praises. There are no idols or images of any sort. Floral offerings of worshipers are piled upon the red drapery, and a 'pandal" of red protects the sacred book from defilement by the pigeons, wheeling overhead and flying through the open tracery of the temple windows. We were told that the book contains no word of attack on any other community, only the precepts of the Sikh religion, which inculcates, as has been said by a Western writer, "all the moral and domestic virtues known to the holiest citizens of any country." It is stated that Guru Nanak, the founder of the Sikhs. when debating with a Muhammadan as to the need for prostrating himself in the direction of Mecca, asked, "Can you tell me any direction where God is not?" The last of the Sikh Gurus, Govind Singh, appointed no successor. He said: "He who wishes to behold the Guru, let him search the Granth."

Not far from the temple, on the mainland, is a tower. nine stories high, the lower chamber of which is decorated with pictures of Sikh religious history.

+ Before leaving the temple precincts, we were shown the great kitchen where 3000 poor are fed every day-on chupatties and vegetable soup. The fine Punjab cauli-flower was much in evidence. No distinction of caste is made, no payment is asked for, the only qualification for alms is real need. Impostors were few, we learned, while violence or anger were never used, only persuasion so that the lazy ones are shamed from eating the bread of idleness.

On returning to our starting point, and receiving our shoes and socks from the kindly policeman in attendance, a book was brought for our signature and remarks. Having for several years been served faithfully and well by a Sikh motor driver, with whom we had sometimes talked about religion, we wrote a few words of respect for the faith, whose outward expression we had seen in its architectural magnificence and its generous charity, and left a few rupees for the service of the poor (our guide would

In return two bowls of white crystal sugar were presented to us, and a length of bright yellow cloth, a frag-ment of which we mailed later to our trusty Sikh friend, with a description of our pilgrimage.

As we came away, impressed by the kindly atmosphere, it seemed to us that one place where East and West may meet and not altogether misunderstand one another is at the Shrine of the Sikhs.

The World's Great Capitals: The Week in Rome

URING the past few months the Italian lira has again depreciated, in sympathy with the French and Belgian currencies, despite the Finance Minister's optimistic and reassuring statements on the soundness of the financial policy pursued by the Fascist Government. The financial authorites of the country are perplexed as to the causes of this continued depreciation of the Italian lira, and many, indeed, had hoped that, after the balancing of the budget, the contraction of the note circulation the settlement of foreign political debts, the funding of floating debt and the reduction of foreign commercial debts, the lira, if it did not improve, would at least remain stable, as it had remained for nearly nine months previous. + + +

Several prominent Italian economists and financiers have lately given it as their opinion that the only sure safeguard against damaging fluctuations lies in a speedy return to the gold standard. In this connection it is interesting to read what Senator Borletti wrote in the Secolo of Milan some time ago. The idea, he says, of bringing back the lira to the prewar parity is illusory. The country is at present using a standard which daily circumstances and events lengthen or shorten in a very despotic way. It is, therefore, absolutely necessary to return to the gold standard, which is the only basis imposed by international convention. On the other hand, Alberto de Stefani, the standard as an impractical one in the immediate future, especially on account of the difficulty of relying upon a trade surplus, and because the trade equilibrium has been greatly affected by the United States restrictions on

The opinion of the Government on the subject of the gold standard and of the stabilization of the currency was recently expressed by Count Guiseppe Volpi. Here is how he put it:

Italy is aware that she cannot separate her monetary problem from the fluctuation of values in other countries and its repercussions, once a relative equilibrium on the great money markets abroad is attained. For this reason, the Italian Government, at the opportune moment, will study, in the exclusive interest of the country, the problem of the restoration of the lira from the international point study, in the exclusive interest of the country, the problem of the restoration of the lira from the international point of view. But it is well that everybody should know that the monetary problem for Italy is not merely a technical one, which can be solved solely by means at the disposal of the Treasury, but that it demands the support of an appropriate economic structure.

In approaching this problem, therefore, the Government must take into account all the economic and social necessities of the country and the indispensable needs of our productive activity. In order that our payments abroad may ties of the country and the indispensable needs of our productive activity, in order that our payments abroad may be balanced by the economic surplus of the Nation. The Government must also hear in mind the case of those who draw their means of subsistence from fixed incomes which cannot bear the strain of rapidly changing price levels. In brief, we must have before us all the factors which bear on each decision, as every effort at stabilization which does not rest on a solid foundation will only render difficult, instead of solving, the fundamental problem.

Two remarkable new books fill at present the windows of the principal book shops of Italy. One is entitled "Dux' and contains an attractive description of the life of the Italian Prime Minister and of the rise from his humble station to the present exalted position. The author of this biography is Margherita Sarfatti, one of the few Italian women journalists, who has had the opportunity of studying the character of the Fascist leader from his early political days. A free English translation of this biography appeared last year before the publication of the original book in the Italian language.

The other book is entitled, "The Vade-Meeum of the Perfect Fascist" and contains 87 maxims and 10 axioms which Fascists should follow for their guidance. Although this book does not bear the official mark of sanction of the recognized leaders of the Fascist Party, it has received the approval of several prominent Fascist leaders to whom it is dedicated, and it is interesting as a typical example of the Fascist nationalist doctrines. Here are a few speci-mens of the maxims: "For the Fascist the recent war was not the last but the first great war"; "War is bread to a Fascist combatant"; "It is a conventional falsehood that France is a sister country"; "Civilization is non-existent for you, Italianism is existent"; "Your bayonet and rifle are given to you, not to lie and rest but with a view to the next war." + + +

The executive committee of the National Institute for the Production of Ancient Plays has sketched the program of classic performances to be held in the Greek Amphitheater of Syracuse, in Sicily, in the spring of the coming year. It includes the production of "Medea" and "The Cyclops" by Euripides, "The Clouds" by Aristophanes, and 'The Satyrs at the Big Game" by an unknown Greek author. The last-mentioned comedy will form the principal attraction of the short season, as it is entirely unknown to the public, having been discovered only a few years ago among a private collection of ancient literary works. The performances of "Medea" and "The Cyclops" will no doubt attract a great number of spectators, as both plays are well known and are regarded as two of the best productions of the Greek golden age. The "Medea" is a tragedy of remarkable force, and hardly any play was more popular in antiquity. Maria Letizia Celli, one of the most promising among the Italian actresses, has been chosen to act the part of Medea. "The Cyclops" is the only extant example of a satyric drama, and the plot is taken mainly book of the Odyssey. from the story of Odysseus and Polyphenus in the ninth

An Italian journalist who has just returned from a tour in central and southern Italy, where he had gone to study local conditions and traditions, announces that he has discovered the most musical village of Italy. The honor he has accorded to Viggiano, near Potenza, a small burgh perched high up on the mountains and containing only 4000 inhabitants. The journalist gives a very interesting description of his wanderings in the village, and observes that a casual visitor reaching it after sunset, when the daily work is over, would be surprised by the variety of tunes and sounds of music which catch his ear from every side. One, indeed, gets the impression of being in a musical conservatoire during lesson hours, and not among mountaineers who are taking a rest after the fatigues of the day. So great and so general is the love for music and for musical instruments that these humble people devote practically all their free hours to the study of music, and to the making and polishing of all kinds of instrument This taste for music, which has been carefully preserved for centuries, is transmitted from father to son, and perhaps in part accounts for the peace and tranquillity which are noticeable in this small village.

A Striking Statistical Comparison

To the Editor of The Christian Science Monitor: A well-known statistician says that statistics prove that prosperity, health and intellect are controlled by the amount of spirituality possessed by individuals and nations. He also says that the number of preachers' children among the great of the earth is out of all proportion to the number of children of parents in other occupations, which is due, he says, to the blessings of Christian living of parents flowing to their children. After reading this statistician's statement as above, I became sufficiently interested to look through the biographies of illustrious men and women to see how many preachers' children I could find among them. Here they are: Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Joseph Addison, Oliver Goldsmith, Jane Austen, Charlotte Brontë, Ann Brontë, William Hazlitt, William Cowper, Charles Churchill, Lord Nelson, Edward Young, Alfred Tennyson, Ralph Waldo Emerson, James Russell Lowell, Harriet Beecher Stowe. Wendell Phillips, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Matthew Arnold, Henry Ward Beecher, Henry Clay, Edward Everett, Samuel Morse, Lyman Abbott, Elijah P. Lovejoy, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Robert G. Ingersoll, Frederich Wilhelm Nietzsche, Francis Parkman, Christian Martin Wieland, August Wilhelm von Schlagel, John Wesley, Chester A. Arthur, Grover Cleveland, Woodrow Wilson.

As an afterthought, it occurred to me to see how many famous children there were of parents engaged in the liquor business; and although I searched a biographical dictionary diligently, I failed to find one-I do not believe that there is one. As contributors to progress, wealth, culture, literature, morals, etc., the Protestant church tops the list and the liquor business stands at zero. PROHIBITIONIST. Chicago, Ill.

Ousting the Unclean Magazine

To the Editor of THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR: In a recent issue of the Moniron I read an article regarding the campaign which the Boy Scouts of Chicago were conducting to oust the unclean magazines from the news stands and stores of that city, and it appealed to me that the work thus being done was of great importance.

The situation of unclean reading in magazines and other publications in the United States is not only a terrific menace to the high standards which that country has heretofore maintained, but it is exercising a great influence on what the moral conditions of the future generation will be. It is true that many women's organ the different cities of America have undertaken to solve the problem, but I think that a greater movement will have to take place, before it can be properly solved. The newspapers of the United States have printed very little for the help of this cause, while they could be one of the most powerful influences in America if they would only take a greater interest in the prevention of the crime.
